Class Description: Building Official Skills

This class will cover some of the code administrators' responsibilities as a Building Official, plans examiner, inspector and other support staff. Legal aspects as found in the administration of the codes will be the base of the discussion but will expand on other productive means to achieve the outcomes that are intended. We will cover the professional and unlawful misconduct as found in Utah State law. We will ask why and by answering this we can then derive how to do this within our program and environment.

Jason Van Ausdal has been in the construction industry as a code official for nearly 30 years and currently is employed by the State of Utah as Assistant Building Official. He has been teaching code trainings for over 20 years starting with Contractor CE's and expanding to teaching in the western United States for various industries. He teaches from his perspective as a Certified Building Official and combination inspector. He has served in many organizations and enjoys sharing his experience with others.
